

Writing an Object's Story

What if an object could tell you its life story? What if it could talk about its past (how it came to be, places it's been), its present (what life is like now), and what it hopes for the future (where it wants to be in 50, 100, or in 1,000 years time)?

Choose an object, whether from your home, a historical artifact, or a work of art, and write a story from its perspective. Consider including sketches of the object, photographs, or other images/objects to help tell its story.